Chapter 7 of the Constitution examines public participation in public finance management in Kenya as enshrined in the Constitution of Kenya 2010. Specifically, the chapter examines the following:

- (i) The constitutional and legislative public participation opportunities in Kenya
- (ii) The mechanisms through which the public can effectively participate in financial matters;
- (iii) Recommendations for effective public participation in fiscal decision making processes.

The Constitution and the PFM Act, 2012 provide a distinct opportunity to enhance the role of citizens in public financial management processes in Kenya. Chapter Twelve of the Constitution deals with Public Finance. Article 201 introduces principles of public finance, among them being, openness and accountability including public participation in financial matters. These principles, if strictly adhered to, would strengthen policy formulation and management of public resources for the improved livelihoods of many Kenyans.

Similarly, public participation in planning, budgeting and oversight at both the national and County levels of Government is guaranteed by the Constitution of Kenya 2010 and the PFM Act, 2012. Sections 35(1) and 125 of the PFM Act, 2012 elaborately outline the stages in the budget process at the national and County Government levels respectively in any financial year. Despite these avenues, citizens may not effectively participate in fiscal decision making due to a number of reasons. Here, the following two reasons will suffice.

The Constitution of Kenya 2010 introduces changes in the public finance management framework in Kenya. Specifically, Chapter Twelve of the Constitution, at Article 201 sets out the principles of public finance as follows:

- (a) Openness and accountability including public participation in financial matters;
- (b) Public finance system shall promote an equitable society;
- (c) Burdens and benefits of the use of resources and public borrowing shall be shared equitably between present and future generations;
- (d) Public money shall be used in prudent and responsible way; and
- (e) Financial management shall be responsible and fiscal reporting shall be clear.

Tharaka Nithi County has been conducting public hearing forums during the development of County plans and during preparations of expenditure framework which always has been conducted by budget and economic planning team.

During the public hearing forum, deliberations and contributions by members of the public were captured and reports prepared by the teams. The key highlights and project proposals were captured in the following sections.
